DAUGHTERS OF EMPIRE WILL ERECT MEMORIAL

Council Grant Permission to Place Plinth at Corner of Main & Second; Wainwright Hotel Seeks Reduction of Levies; Tractors to be Stopped on Main St

Although the Town Council did not get started until one hour late on Monday last, quite a lot of work was gone through in record time.

Mayor Lally occupied the chair and was faced by Councillors Davison, McLeod - Wiley, with Secretary Pawling and Commissioner Brunker in attendance.

The Minutes of the previous regular and two adjourned meetings were read and approved on a motion by McLeod-Davison.

A deputation in the persons of Mesdames Kenny, Pawling and Crampton waited upon Council in the interests of the local chapter of the I. O. D. E. These ladies reported that it was the desire of their organisation to erect a memorial to our local soldier heroes who fell at the front in the Great War, and they were desirous of obtaining permission to use the center of the intersection of Main street and Second avenue. It was proposed to erect a circular plinth or column five feet in diameter and some 15 feet in height, which would probably be surmounted by a four-faced clock.

After the matter had been talked over.

Davison - McLeod—That the petition of the I. O. D. E. be favorably received and that permission be granted them to place a memorial to the men who fell overseas at the intersection of Main street and Second avenue subject to the final plans being submitted to the Council—Carried.

Mr M. L. Forster of the Wainwright hotel appeared before the Council with regard to the high taxation on that property. He stated that his taxes amounted to over $550.000 and with light and other expenses he found it impossible to make the hotel a paying proposition. He said that he had not come to ask anything that was considered unfair but thought that his house was a public convenience the payments demanded by Council were away too high. He claimed that unless the Council could grant him some concession he would have to pull out.

The Mayor stated the "too high" cry was one which everyone was only too willing to take advantage of, but he could hold out no hopes of a rebate until the Council had had time to deal with the matter, and the matter was disposed of by.

McLeod-Davison—That a committee be appointed to take up the matter of Mr Forster's request for some reduction of the various amounts at present levied against the Wainwright hotel property with a view to trying to arrive at some possible reduction of same. —Carried.

The Mayor appointed Councillors McLeod, Fish and Montgomery as this committee.

The Finance Committee reported accounts amounting to the sum of $2718.15 and decommended the payment of same.

Davison - McLeod—That the Finance committee's report be adopted and that cheques covering the several amounts be issued.—Carried.

Councillor Davison mentioned that the fact of getting materials for the town without asking for quotations did not seem the best way to purchase, or likely to save the Council money. He thought that the purchases from the Atlas Lumber Co. amounting to some $200 should have been procured by quotations.

Councillor McLeod and the Mayor stated that although the bill seemed large the material was procured in such quantities that it was only the aggregate which was big, and most of the stuff could hardly be measured up before use.

With regard to the filling of the vacancy on the Council caused by the resignation of Mr P. Dewar.

Davison - McLeod—That the resignation of Mr Dewar be accepted with regrets.—Carried.

Davison - McLeod—That Bylaw No. 131 being a bylaw for the purpose of appointing a returning officer for the purpose of holding an election to fill the vacancy by the resignation of Mr Peter Dewar be introduced—Carried.

Bylaw 131 was accordingly given first, second and third readings, and Mr H. Y. Pawling was thereby appointed returning officer for the forthcoming bye-election on the motion of McLeod-Davison.

The secretary brought up the matter of the assessment of the property of Mr Christianson and Mr E. J. Cotton stating that these rate-payers were questioning the legality of their taxes on improvements lately added to the property.

The matter was dealt with by

Davison - McLeod—That the secretary be authorised to notify the owners of Lot 13 in Block 22 and Lot 3 in Block 31 to attend at the next regular meeting of the Council to show cause why the stated assessments should not be made on their respective properties.—Carried.

Under the "Soldiers' Home Protection Act" Mr J. Whittle claimed a rebate of taxes which were paid in 1917 and 1918, and which subsequent amendment to the Town Act had since made exempt;, and Davison - Wiley —That Mr Whittle's taxes on Lot 1 in Block 3 be remitted for 1917 and 1918 under the "Soldiers' Home Exemption Act."—Carried.

Davison-Wiley—That Wednesday, November 30th be set as the date of the annual tax sale.—Carried.

On account of electrical and other supplies now coming to hand and the Utility Commission er requiring some office space, it was thought best that for the present these store be placed in the Town Hall.

Councillor Davison made a request that some lighting be placed in the show case at the depot, and as this was considered desirable

Davison - Wiley—That two lights be placed in the show-case at the depot on a line to be run from the depot restaurant with a meter in the show-case with the permission of the G. T. P.—Carried.

Commissioner Brunker presented a long list of repairs to the pole line which he considered necessary to be done before freeze up, and the list was turned over to the special electric committee.

Councillor gave notice of motion as follows:—"That at the next regular meeting I will introduce a bylaw to amend Bylaw 131 (being a bylaw respecting streets) to prohibit gas and steam tractors from operating on Main street from First to Third avenues and on, Second avenue from King to Queen streets.

WEDDING BELLS

RENTON—CUMMINGS

The home of Mr and Mrs J. W. Cummings, 9919 88th avenue, was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday evening when their daughter, Esther B. Cummings became the bride of Henry Renton, son of Mr and Mrs J. Renton, 11122 81st ave. Rev Mr Going was the officiating minister.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with sweet peas and asters for the occasion. To the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Mabel Pecknold, the bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She was lovely in a wedding gown of cream satin, with overdress of lace and lace veil to match and carried a shower bouquet of ophelia roses and fern. The bridal couple were unattended.

The bride lived for several years on her father's farm in the Greenshields district,

PURSE OF GOLD GIVEN TO DEPARTING PRESBY. MINISTER

On the eve of the departure of Rev. J. Thompson, of St Andrews church for his new appointment at Banff, the members and friends of his old congregation here, among whom he has labored for the past four years, held a farewell reception at which the retiring minister was the guest of honor.

Mr E. L. Fuller, who acted as chairman, opened the proceedings with a fitting explanation of the gathering and the following short programe was well received by those present.

Violin Solo—Mrs Beckett.
Recitation—J. W. Stuart.
Vocal Solo—Mrs E. Fuller.
Violin Solo—Mrs Beckett
Reading—W. J. Huntingford.

At the close of the programme the chairman called upon Mr R. Dunsmore, who in a very appropriate speech extended to the retiring pastor the best wishes of all in his new sphere of labor and presented him with a purse of gold as a slight recognition of the esteem and respect in which his memory and ministry is held.

Mr Thompson who was visibly affected at the parting with old friends and parishioners suitably replied, and reminded his hearers that they would always be remembered in his prayer and he asked the same consideration for himself.

The ladies of the church then served a delightful little lunch which was heartly enjoyed, and before dispersal the hymn "God be with you till we meet again" was sung, the proceedings closing with "Auld lang syne."

CANADIAN NATIONAL REDUCE MENU PRICES ON DINING CARS

The reductions are in line with the general policy of making Canadian National dining car service one that will meet the needs and the means of all and at the same time render the service the public wants.

WAINWRIGHT HONORS HEROES AT BIG MEMORIAL SERVICE

The world war began seven years ago. It is nearly three since it ended. The scars are not yet healed nor will they be while the generation that saw the war lives. The sacrifices that were made still leave an ache in many hearts, says the Bulletin.

But the world's work must be done. The urgency of daily needs demands regard. The processes of nature are kindly. Pain in dulled by time. Those who did not suffer can forget. The newer generations could not know and therefore will not remember.

It is more than fitting that those who went from among us to the great war and who did not return should be remembered; not for their sake but for ours and those who come after. For them the chapter is closed. They gave all, that the world might be free and that civilization should be maintained. Nothing that we can do can limit their sacrifice. But realizing their purpose, we can each do our part towards the achievement of that purpose. We can do the work that they died to have done. By keeping in mind the men we keep in mind their purpose. The memory of their sacrifice is the best and surest inspiration towards like sacrifices for the like cause should future occasion demand. And it is true in this age of the world as in every age before, that the price of liberty is sacrifice.

We have lost the activities and companionship of the men who died in the war, and the loss is great. But they have left with us for our safekeeping a legacy of achievement seated by sacrifice that gives to every child born to the name Canadian a place in the world that he could never have had if there had not been sacrifice as well as achievement. Achievement that does not demand sacrifice is of small account.

The memorial service held Sunday afternoon in the Elite was most fitting and impressive. The crowds that attended no doubt included many who were not directly interested in the purpose of the service but all paid due respect to the occasion, and no one could fail to have impressed upon his mind the tremendous fact that so many of his own fellow citizens had freely offered their lives in the cause of world liberty. A man must think better of his own kind and therefore of himself when he realises that the men and boys that he rubbed shoulders with day by day were capable of such high purpose bringing to them such terrible reward. They died to save the world. They did save it. It is for those who live to keep it safe.

The following was the programme of the proceedings at the theatre, after which a large number journeyed to the cemetery where the flowers were placed upon the memorial plot which has recently been presented to the chapter by the Town Council.

The graves of Major Peck and Pte Fairhead in the cemetery were also honored by flowers "the flag" before the company dispersed.

A fitting conclusion to the whole affair was the hymn "Last post."

Chorus—"O Canada."
Hymn—"For ever with the Lord"
Silent prayer for the dead.
Scripture reading—Rev N. F. Priestley.
Hymn—"Rock of Ages"
Vocal Solo—"Be Thou Nigh"—Mrs E. L. Fuller.
Hymn"—There is no night in heaven"
God Save the King.

Interspersed throughout the programme appropriate speeches were delivered on the celebration of Memorial Day by Mayor Lally, Principal Suckling and Mr J. R. Love, M.L.A. and Mrs A. E. Mills most capably officiated the piano while during the proceedings floral flowers were made by large members of the assemblage, the latter being taken to the cemetery in close.

NORTHERN WHEAT YIELD GIVES HIGH AVERAGE IS GOVERNMENT REP'T

Taken as a whole the portion of Alberta lying north of Red Deer has harvested a magnificent crop this season.

According to estimates made by the provincial department of agriculture the wheat yield north of a line drawn east and west across the province at Red Deer, will average 36 bushels to the acre Oats will average 44 bushels and barley will average 31 bushels.

Figures for the province as a whole will be issued by the department within a few days, officials having completed the survey upon which a general estimate is being based.

In the Pease River and Grande Prairie districts the crop is a record-breaker according to reports In fact almost every district north of Edmonton has been harvesting an exceptionally heavy yield of grain. Premier Greenfield says the grain at Westlock is superb. E. J. Lyne of Grande Prairie says that the wheat crop in that region beggars description, it being estimated that almost all fields will thresh forty bushels to the acre of number one Northern. Moreover nearly sixty per cent. of the great acreage now nearly all harvested is wheat.

ELEVATORS READY TO TAKE CARE OF THE NEW 1921 CROP

Things will be in good shape for the moving the grain crop in this part of the province, states the Edmonton Journal in a recent article and goes on to say that it is reported by local elevator companies and the railway freight offices. With prospects for a large yield and probably as much wheat as last year, it looks as though there need be no serious difficulty in getting it out, the preparations for the annual grain stampede being now well under way.

All the elevators in northern and Central Alberta are said now to be empty and ready to receive the new crop. They have been cleared of all the old grain, have had such repairs made as were necessary, and are now awaiting the first farmer's load from the harvest fields.

From the standpoint of the railways, it is stated that there will be fully adequate facilities for moving out the crop this fall, even with the lively rush for coal all over the prairies. Both the Canadian National lines and the Canadian Pacific report an abundance of cars and more being stored every day. On the Grand Trunk Pacific every siding between Edmonton and the Saskatchewan border is said to have a string of cars already in waiting.

The situation will inevitably be affected to some degree by the coal shipping rush that will come on just about the time that wheat is moving most briskly. Efforts to induce the prairie people to lay in their coal during the summer have not been very successful, and the usual scurry in October and November is therefore expected, with the result that cars that ought to be available for moving the wheat will be tied up. Nevertheless the railways report that they are in good shape to handle any ordinary amount of business.

It is not expected that there will be any considerable amount of wheat to ship out from the country tributary to Edmonton until the first of October. Some threshing in the southern part of the district is reported under way but there will be no general movement for another month or five weeks.

The crop-moving facilities out of the Edmonton district will be increased this year by the recent acquisition of three elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur by the Gillespie Company. These newly purchased elevators will give the Edmonton company an additional capacity at the head of lake of 3. 250.000 bushels, and in onjunction with their string of forty-five elevators in Alberta will make it possible to move a lot of grain throughout the season

A Detector Of Carelessness

Machine Registers Bumps and Knocks Given to Freight In Transit.

Rough handling of freight in railway yards or in transit gives rise to many claims by shippers. In some districts this cause is reckoned as producing from 25 to 30 per cent. of all claims for damages. Railroad managers have wrestled with the problem, which is difficult because it is so hard to trace the carelessness to any one train crew.

Now, however, an instrument has been devised to detect the time and place of damage done to moving freight. It is called an "impact register," and has been made the subject of exhaustive tests by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad. The machine is constructed on the principle of the seismograph, and when placed in a box car will record the time of each shock and also the intensity. By this means the management is able to prove exactly when and where, for example, the reckless switching of freight cars was done.

Oldest Bell In Western World

Taken From Spanish Monastry Bears Date 803 A.D.

The oldest bell in North America—or in either of the Americas—is in the rectory of the small village of East Haddam, Conn., which stands a few yards from the famous schoolhouse of Nathan Hale. The bell bears the date, "A.D. 803," and it is believed it was taken from an ancient Spanish monastery. The bell probably came to America as part of a ship's ballast, or as junk. At any rate, this particular bell was purchased from a junk yards and presented to the church. The age of the bell, however, is doubtful. It is of bronze, and of a greenish color. It is not cracked, and will still resound when struck, but it is now used. There is little doubt, however, that this bell is the oldest in this continent, and that it was the first bell to ring over the waters of the new world from the belfry of one of the first churches built on these shores.

England and France.

The world as we see it now is not a world in which France and England can afford to quarrel over minor matters, still less on any personal grounds. Do you discriminate at the dining table—or are you thoughtless?

In thousands of homes, a "line" is drawn at the breakfast table. Tea or coffee is served for "grown-ups" and Postum for children. But some parents do not discriminate. Tannin and caffeine, the injurious contents of tea and coffee, seriously retard the development of the delicate nerve tissues in children.

Consequently, instead of rich, satisfying Postum, children are over stimulated by the drugs in tea and coffee; and so may grow up irritable and nervous. Any doctor can tell you that this is a great evil and should be corrected.

Although some parents feel a certain justification for the personal indulgence in tea or coffee, yet the harm to them may be equally serious. It may take a little while longer for the drugs in tea and coffee to affect an older person, but in many cases the nervous system and allied bodily functions will become weakened. The surest way to avoid such possibilities is to quit tea and coffee entirely and drink Postum instead. The change permits you to get sound, restful sleep.

Postum is the well-known, meal-time beverage. Like thousands of others you will like it because, in flavor it is rich and satisfying.

Do away with the distinction at the table. Serve delicious Postum, piping hot, to all the family. One week's trial and it is likely that you'll never return to tea or coffee.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 11

PAUL IN ATHENS

I. The Idolatry of the Athenians (v. 16).

Athens was the intellectual metropolis of the world at that time, the home of the world's great eloquence and philosophy. Paul's spirit was stirred within him when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry.

II. The Parties Concerned (vv. 17-21).

True to his usual custom Paul went into the Jewish synagogue and entered into earnest argument with the Jews. From them he turned to such as were found in the market place. Here he came into touch with the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers. The former were atheistic materialists. They denied the doctrine of Creation. They gave themselves up to sensual indulgences since they had no idea of future judgment. The latter were pantheists. When they heard the preaching of Paul they desired to know what new doctrine he preached, so they invited him to the Areopagus where he might speak to them of his new doctrine. They inquired as to what this "babbler" might say. The word "babbler" means literally "seed-picker."

III. Paul's Address on Mars' Hill (vv. 23-31).

1. The introduction (vv. 22, 23). He did not accuse them of "superstition" as the A. V. would make it, but as in the Am. R. V. he introduces his discourse in a courteous and conciliatory manner, stating that he perceived that they were very religious. This he explained by stating that as he was viewing their city he beheld an altar with an inscription "To the Unknown God." This was his point of contact. He proceeds at once to connect it with the idea of the living God, implying that this altar had been erected to Him. He was too wise to begin at once to denounce heathenism and idolatry.

2. The body of his discourse (vv. 24-31).

(1) A declaration concerning God (vv. 24, 25). (a) He created the material universe (v. 24). This was a direct blow at the philosophy of both the Epicureans and the Stoics. He did not attempt to prove the existence of God; it needs no proof. The Bible everywhere assumes the existence of a divine being. (b) His spirituality and immensity (vv. 24, 25). He is not served with "men's hands as though he needed anything," neither is He confined by any sort of religious temple. Being essentially spiritual He demands heart-service, and being transcendent above all He is not confined to earthly temples. (c) His active providence (v. 25). He gives existence, bestows needed gifts, and as sovereign directs all things.

(2) Declaration concerning man (vv. 26-31). (a) His common origin (v. 26). This was a blow at the foolish Athenian pride which supposed that they were superior to all other people. This proposition he proved from their own literature (see v. 28). If men are the offspring of God and bear His likeness it is utter folly to make images as the senseless idols were. (b) Nations have their place by the sovereign purpose of God (v. 26). The position and mission of each nation is of God's appointment. (c) Men should seek God (v. 26). His goodness and grace in supplying all our needs, and ordering even the affairs of the nations should move man to see and seek God, for he is indeed very near to every one; so near that our existence and movements are all under His control (v. 27). (d) Pressing obligation to repent (vv. 30, 31). This was his supreme message. Though God had formerly passed over idolatry He now calls to all men to repent. The solemn reason for such action is the coming day of judgment, the credential of which is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. The judgment of God of an unbelieving world is as sure as this fact. Men will be judged on the basis of their attitude toward Jesus Christ.

IV. Result of Paul's Preaching (vv. 32-34).

1. Some mocked (v. 32).
2. Some procrastinated (v. 32).
3. Some believed (v. 34).

The Japanese Emperor

Has Never Been Outside His Own Country.

The Emperor Yoshihito of Japan, who was 42 years old Aug. 31st, is probably unique amongst the rulers of nations in that he has never yet been outside his own country. In this respect the ancient traditions of Japan have been preserved so far as Yoshihito is concerned, but not so in the case of his son and heir, the crown prince, who in the course of time will come to the throne with the advantage of a personal knowledge of other countries gained by his present tour of the world. In his youth the present emperor was largely screened from the public eye, but immediately he succeeded his father on the throne, in 1912, he discarded the old traditions and evinced a desire to become closer acquainted with his people. He makes a point, whenever possible, to drive or walk about his capitol with only a small escort.

Embroidery Adorns A Navy Serge Coat

By Marie Belmont.

The loose-sleeved coat is an admirable addition to the wardrobe of the well-dressed woman. This model is cut from a very fine piece of navy blue serge. It shows the dropped armhole which insures comfort as well as preventing the crushing of the flimy frock. The bell-shaped sleeves are finished with a deep stretch of embroidery which reveals both Copenhagen and tan silks. The lower part of the wrap is similarly adorned. Oblong bone buttons make a distinctive fastening, while the high collar emphasizes a new style note for Fall. The felt hat shows a feather trimming.

FOR STIFF NECK AND SORE THROAT

Immediate relief comes from rubbing Nerviline over the chest and lower part of the neck. Rub in deeply—lots of rubbing helps. Nerviline reaches the congested parts at once, relieves tightness, takes out the soreness. A bottle of Nerviline in the home relieves a hundred ills, internal and external. Used for nearly half a century as a general household remedy. Large bottles 35c at all dealers.

Bumper Apple Crop.

The most recent reports received by the Provincial Department of Agriculture from the fruit districts of British Columbia state that the apple crop will be 100 per cent. greater this year than last year. The crop will require, it is estimated, 5,000 freight cars to take care of the exports.

What One of the Best Known Travellers in Canada Says

"Now I am going to give you an unsolicited testimonial, as they say in the patent medicine advertising. Heretofore I have had a profound contempt for patent medicines, particularly so-called liniments. Perhaps this is due to the reason that I have been blessed with a sturdy constitution, and have never been ill a day in my life. One day last fall after a hard day's tramp in the slush of Montreal, I developed a severe pain in my legs and, of course, like a man who has never had anything wrong with him physically, I complained rather boisterously. The good little wife says: "I will rub them with some liniment I have." "Go ahead," I said, just to humor her. "Well, in she comes with a bottle of Minard's Liniment and gets busy. Believe me the pain disappeared a few minutes after, and you can tell the world I said so."

(Signed) FRANK E. JOHNS, Montreal.

Commodore Maitland Was Pioneer Aviator

Flew to U.S. in 1919 as Observer With the R-34.

Air Commodore E. M. Maitland, who perished in the explosion of the dirigible ZR-2 over Hull, England, was official observer for the British Air Ministry in the historic trans-Atlantic round trip voyage of the R-34 in July, 1919.

His renown as a flier was world-wide, and the log in which he recorded the important and trivial events during the flight of the R-34 from England to Long Island and return formed one of the best known bits of aeronautic literature.

The Commodore was a pioneer flier. Coming from an Essex infantry regiment, he learned to fly in 1909. He was one of the first men to pilot a British ship over the lines during the recent war.

Parachute leaping was almost a habit with him, and it was said he had dropped to earth in that manner from planes, balloons and dirigibles of all types. He was prominent in development of parachute apparatus and once dropped 10,000 feet by that means from a kite balloon, a record fall at the time.

Last June the Commodore, who held the rank of Brigadier-General, watched the running of the Derby at Epsom Downs from the P-33. The big race over, he nosed the airship toward his home at Howden, but when passing over Cardington remembered he had an important engagement there. Landing the ship was impossible, so Commodore Maitland grasped a parachute and his luggage followed quickly by the same means.

Gluten Flour

Its Uses and Characteristics Explained in Government Bulletin.

Nearly all of the so-called gluten flours offered to the public are not made from gluten. Such is the frank statement made by Dr. C. E. Saunders, the Dominion Cerealist, in a bulletin entitled "Wheat, Flour and Bread," recently issued by the Experimental Farms Branch at Ottawa. The named used, says Dr. Saunders, is entirely misleading, as these flours often contain a high percentage of starch and are quite unsuitable for diabetic patients. As a rule the gluten flours offered for sale are practically identical with the whole wheat and graham flours. Genuine gluten flour, which is made by washing the starch out of wheaten flour and then drying and grinding, is extremely expensive. Gluten bread has no resemblance to ordinary bread and as a substitute for such is an impossibility. Rather less than 50 per cent. of genuine gluten flour can be mixed with ordinary flour, and bread of medium quality be made. Gluten flour can also be used in the production of pancakes, biscuits and other products provided it be mixed with ordinary flour, fine shorts or ground nuts, together with eggs, milk, baking powder, etc. There is, however, no possibility of producing any form of palatable bread, biscuit or cake with a very large proportion of pure gluten flour. Dr. Saunders suggests that physicians would be well advised to take cognizance of these facts and not to expect their patients to purchase what is unpurchasable or to eat what is inedible. The bulletin, it might be remarked, goes thoroughly into its subject, treating it in all its phases.

Silver in the Yukon.

The Geological Survey of Canada has just published a report by W. E. Cockfield on the Mayo district, Yukon Territory, in which argentiferous galena veins are being mined. The galena assays from 200 to 500 ounces of silver per ton, and in places runs as high as 2,000 ounces.

Fresh Supplies in Demand.—Wherever Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has been introduced, increased supplies have been ordered, showing that wherever it goes this excellent Oil impresses its power on the people. No matter in what latitude it may be found its potency is never impaired. It is put up in most portable shape in bottles and can be carried without fear of breakage.

The Last Link With Franklin

Reminiscences of Gallant Seaman Who Braved Arctic Perils.

The other day at Hull, there died at the great age of ninety-seven, a captain, Richard Tether, who was the last link with those active Arctic expeditions in search of the remains of Franklin's party, every searching expedition bringing reports of importance to geographical science. Tether's death is the occasion of a looking backward to the search for a northwest passage to the Pacific, especially to Sir John Franklin's last expedition and to the expeditions for his relief, and later for the purpose of discovering what happened to the "Erebus" and the "Terror" and their gallant passengers.

Franklin is an arctic hero of a singularly heroic maritime age and his name is associated with Canada's northland on two counts. In 1819, on his first overland journey from Hudson's Bay to the mouth of the Coppermine River, he wintered on the Saskatchewan. And it was at Cumberland House that he taught the lad, William Kennedy, psalms and hymns, and left him with aspirations that bore fruit long after. On that expedition, which covered two years, he returned by the Barren Ground. In the years 1825-1827, he made a second overland journey, or inland voyage as the term is now. Both expeditions, fruitful in discovery, were well rewarded by the nation. Between 1829 and 1845 when he sailed on the last fateful voyage, Franklin won distinction in the Mediterranean and in the South Seas, but he was ready and eager for the new adventure by Arctic ice and water, and when the First Lord of the Admiralty reminded him that he was sixty years old, the explorer replied: "No, no, my lord, only fifty-nine." Though the whole expedition was to end tragically, the evidence is that the noble adventurer saw the northwest passage though he never entered it.

Between 1847 and 1857 some forty-nine expeditions sailed in search of the "Erebus" and the "Terror," many of them financed by voluntary contributions. Lady Franklin spent her whole fortune in the search. The expedition of 1851, in the schooner Albert, commanded by Captain Kennedy, with Lieut. Bellot, of the French navy as second, was Lady Franklin's private venture; and it was the "Prince Albert" that brought home the first traces of the missing ships, consisting of scattered articles found on Beechey Island by the captain of another ship. The notable geographical discoveries made by the "Price Albert" were Bellot Straits and the northernmost point of land in North America which navigators had been seeking for centuries.

Captain Kennedy, who was born at Fort Cumberland, returned to the Northwest and spent the last forty years of his life at St. Andrew's on the Red River. A few years ago, the women's Canadian Club placed a tablet to his memory in the old stone church at St. Andrew's, built in 1848. The tablet was unveiled by Sir Ernest Shackleton.

Like Captain Kennedy, Richard Tether was a volunteer, but in a later searching expedition he had been an able seaman and had spent boyhood and manhood in northern waters. Like Captain Kennedy, he "slipped his anchor," but not at sea. Such men, says his memorialist in a London journal, "are the salt of our race." We had abundant proof of that salt, as great proof as all history affords, during the war. It is a gallant race, the sea-faring race, and it has put dynamic into the very word, sea. A little word of three letters—a word that thrills today as it thrilled in the years when they pronounced it as we pronounce "say." And while the word thrills seamen or landsmen, the race will never lack salt.—Free Press.

The Jewels Of Watches

Sapphires Generally Used on Account Of Hardness and Reasonable Price.

The principal reason for the deterioration of any piece of machinery is because the constant friction wears away the moving parts and interferes with the regularity of the mechanism.

Watches are generally equipped with seven, fifteen, seventeen, eighteen, twenty-one or twenty-three jewels, the fifteen and seventeen jewel types being the most popular. Intrinsically, the jewels are of little value, but from the standpoint of service and the specific purpose which they serve they are invaluable. The jewels usually used in watchmaking are the hardest of the precious stones, diamonds, sapphires and rubies, and of these the most generally used is the sapphire, which combines hardness with comparatively reasonable price.

Miss Ella Johnson Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"My trouble began as small pimples and in a few months they got worse and my forehead was just a mass of large pimples. They were hard and red and caused me to scratch, and I was disfigured for the time. They made me embarrassed when out in company. I tried sassafras tea but it was of no help. I saw a Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and sent for a free sample. After using them I bought more, and when I had used one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment for about a month I was completely healed." Alberta May Have Oil Boom

British Trade Commissioner, Montreal, Receives Detailed Report.

That there may be an oil boom in this country of unprecedented proportions is the conclusion of a detailed report on oil operations in Alberta and the North-West Territories received by Capt. E. J. Edwards, senior British trade commissioner, Montreal, from the Winnipeg branch.

The operations of the Imperial Oil Company take the major part in the report, and the conclusion is that "there is little doubt that the arrival of further important news from the north at the end of the present summer and the finding of more oil within the province of Alberta will be the signal for an oil boom of unprecedented magnitude.

SUMMER HEAT HARD ON BABY

No season of the year is so dangerous to the life of little ones as is the summer. The excessive heat throws the little stomach out of order so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand the baby may be beyond all human help before the mother realizes he is ill. Summer is the season when diarrhoea, cholera infantum, dysentery and colic are most prevalent. Any one of these troubles may prove deadly if not properly treated. During the summer the mothers' best friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and keep baby healthy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ROBINSON

EMORIAL TO OUR SOLDIER DEAD

After many, many weary waits from varying causes, the local chapter of the I. O. D. E. have come to a decision to erect as soon as possible a fitting memorial to the men of the Wainwright district who fell at the front in the Great War.

It is proposed that this take the form of a four-faced clock raised upon a cylindrical column so as to form a permanent memorial that "all who run may read" Another point to the feature of memorial day is that the Council has presented to this organisation a plot at the cemetery which has now been deeded for all time for the purpose of the fitting and proper ceremonial of the religious exercises of the occasion and whereon it is mooted that a wooden cross (after the pattern of the Flanders crosses) and poppies be planted.

It would seem to us, however, that such a plan is not as advisable as could be wished. The poppies might—or might not—flourish but would in any case require some attention and the permanence of a wooden cross is of doubtful proportions.

Would not the members of the I. O. D. E. be well advised to cause to be erected a stone or concrete cenotaph? This form of adoration is being taken up and carried to entirety in thousands of places all over the globe and it seems to us by far the most advisable proposition for marking the cemetery plot. The public memorial at the intersection of Main and Second would of course prove a splendid mark of respect and appreciation for the services rendered to humanity by our fallen soldier heroes, and, for that matter, it could possibly include a bronze scroll emblazoned with their names, but it could prove no more enlogistic of the services rendered humanity by the men of the Wainwright district than a silent yet impressive monitor of God's acre, to which in the better weather numbers of us journey to ponder and meditate onthe wonderful ways and mercies of the Eternal.

IS CHURCH UNION POSSIBLE FOR WAINWRIGHT

In view of the fact that the pulpit of St. Andrew's church is now vacant through the departure of Rev. J. Thompson to Banff, it might possibly be an opportune time to give "church union" in our town a try-out. It has been mooted for some considerable time that this union of the Methodist and Presbyterian congregations here is not at all distasteful, in fact it is being rather freely advocated by members of both churches and we would suggest that a committee be appointed by "the powers that be" in each of these denominations with a view to meeting and sifting out the problem which is now being so successfully carried out in so many towns in the west, and where by the running expenses are vastly reduced, and a better finincial status upheld.

Ford Truck Increases Land Value

The value of land can be estimated only by the accessibility of its produce to the market.

It is not so much a question of what is grown as what is readily and quickly marketed that counts.

Big profits depend on rapid and cheap transportation. Every hour saved on the trip to your selling point means money saved. The time wasted behind the horse can be used to greater advantage and far greater profit.

WIDE AWAKE MAN NOW DEMANDS MORE FROM HIS MONEY

A healthy dollar that won't work more than once a year has no place in retail establishment.

It belongs in a bank where risks are small and profits in proportion

In other words the spirit of the times calls for "rapid turnovers."

Profits, yes but made by taking a small net profit on each sale and then turning your capital frequently.

Just observe that this requires a complete reversal of your past thinking.

Two or three years ago when goods were scarce you loaded up your reserve stock rooms with all the merchandise you could get, slapped on a big gross profit, and let that big mark-up make up for the lazy dollars in your store room.

And the consumer paid the long price. Couldn't help it! Everybody was doing it.

But the consumer won't pay the long price now.

The answer, of course, is buy frequently.

Use the jobber.

Keep your selling displays full and your stock rooms empty.

The jobber will carry the stock for you, and ship goods monthly weekly, even daily as you direct.

BEATEN BY AN UPSTART!

A woman will less ego, with vanity less justified than Jane Goring's would have felt no less furious. To have her own greatest triumph on the stage turned into an overwhelming ovation for an upstart member of her cast—one does not have to explain her feelings. She had hated the girl from the start, anyway. And oddly enough, when the great Jane Goring gave an ultimatum to the manager and he accepted it, she felt for the first time in her victorious life, weak; felt the desire to—well, to cling. Such is one striking situation in Nazimova's newest picture, "Madame Peacock," by Rita Wieman. See it Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Elite theatre.

It Certainly Delivers The Goods, Declares Manitoba Merchant

"Tanlac has made such a big change in me that I feel like an entirely different man," said Chas. W. Cohen, well-known business man, residing at Stockdale, Man.

"The medicine has put me on my feet in the very best of health, and I am only too glad to give it my highest endorsement. For three years I was in very bad health and didn't know what it was to feel right. Everything I ate seemed to sour in my stomach and I had an uncomfortable bloated up feeling that lasted for hours at a time.

"I couldn't sleep soundly, could scarcely eat a thing, was going down rapidly in weight and my work was just a drag to me. I was nervous and restless, scarcely had any strength or energy, and, in fact, wasn't myself at all.

"When I read the statement of a man who had gotten rid of troubles like mine by taking Tanlac, I decided to try it myself. Well, six bottles have fixed me up so fine that I eat good and hearty of just everything I want now, and never feel a sign of distress. I have regained all my lost weight and strength and can say for Tanlac that it certainly delivers the goods."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

England's Traditions

In a young and new country like Canada, and especially when the population is of a most cosmopolitan character, a regular polyglot of language and races, there is apt to develop a feeling akin to contempt for the historical past and those traditions of older lands which have been handed down from generation to generation and become woven into and a part of the national character. There is liable to be an impatience with all that savors of precedent and a scorn of reliance upon long tried principles and policies which have brought the race to where it is today, enlarged its freedom and protected its liberties.

Granted that it would be a mistake for any new country to supinely rely upon and slavishly follow in the footsteps of older lands and their historical past; admitting that only by new departures, by blazing new trails, by a cobrageous initiative, can there be progress—it is none the less true that in the forward march the safe, the prudent course is to retain a strong anchor in the past; to press onward, not by the adoption of revolutionary methods, but through wise evolution, profiting by the mistakes and lessons of the past, but inspired by the glorious traditions and achievements of our forefathers and guided by their ripened experience and wisdom.

What made England the bulwark of the Allied cause throughout the long drawn out years of the Great War? Why was it that Germany feared England more than all her other enemies combined? And why is it that in these trying first years of peace in a world turned topsy turvy it is to England the whole world looks to carry the major portion of the world's burden and work out the world's salvation?

It is not that the men and women of the English race are so much more clever than those of other races; it is not that they are, taken as a whole intellectually superior; it is not that they are gifted above all other peoples. No, it is not because of these things. But it is because there is grounded in the people of England—not merely those now living within the confines of England, but in all parts of the world—the great traditions of England, the inspiration of England's literature, the lives, the words, the deeds of England's great men. It is such traditions as that established by England's sailors, "Women and children first," and "the captain was the last to leave the sinking ship," that has maintained untarnished England's mercantile service and made her naval supremacy no threat to the world. "England never knows when she is beaten," impatiently declared one of her greatest enemies in a bygone age, and that tradition remained with the soldiers and sailors of Greater England throughout the Great War, even in the darkest days, impelling them on to snatch victory from the very jaws of defeat.

Strong, stern, implacable in battle, England is ever chivalrous toward a brave but defeated foe. An Englishman admires a good fighter and is the first to admit his good qualities, whether it be on the battlefield or the field of sport. English sport the world over is a synonym for "clean." "Play fair" has become a national characteristic.

Down through the centuries England, while tenacious of her own rights and privileges, has frankly recognized the rights and privileges of others. Even when an autocratic sovereign has on occasion done wrong and persisted in it, the real heart of England has opposed that wrong. In a word it is a tradition of England to be just, and even those who condemn some of her policies in past centuries must, in truth, recognize that in those less enlightened years England was in advance of other countries, plodding on toward a brighter, better day.

From these traditions there has grown and developed a strong national character, a national pride, a high sense of national honor. When England gives her word, all nations recognize that she will keep it. Belgium relied upon the word of England in 1914, and did not rely in vain. Germany, alone, failed to realize that England's pledges are made to be kept and not treated as scraps of paper. Only recently, during the world-wide discussion of the question of renewal of the Anglo-Japanese treaty, Lloyd George again silenced all critics when, after pointing out how Japan had faithfully fulfilled her obligations during the Great War and made possible England's great effort in France without the handicap of guarding the Pacific, he asked: "Shall England, having accepted this assistance when it was so urgently needed, turn round and refuse to maintain the mutual obligation now that England does not require it?" Englishmen emphatically answered, no.

England's traditions are the source of England's strength and England's greatness. They are the warp and woof of the national character. Without them in these days of world upheaval England and the British Empire might easily be rent asunder and go down in the oblivion of other great empires of the past. No country can truly call itself a nation until it has achieved great traditions. Despite all the horror, suffering and loss of the Great War, it has at least conferred this benefit on Canada that it has given our people one great tradition, one that will live forever and will leave an indelible impression on all future generations of Canadians.

British Develop Palestine Schools

People Provide Buildings and Government Pays Maintenance Costs.

So comprehensive is the education plan scheme of the Government of Palestine that, at the present rate of progress, the whole country will be provided with schools within four years, it is announced in London.

Since January, 34 new village schools, providing elementary education for 1,300 children have been opened, while 46 state-aided schools provided in villages by the inhabitants have been taken over by the Government. An additional 35 school will be opened during the current financial year, it is announced.

Measures also are being taken by the development of the two training colleges for teachers. Teachers are also being appointed to live among the Bedouin tribes and teach their children.

A central education committee has been formed, consisting of four Moslems, three Jews and three Christians.

Under the arrangement now in force the people of the villages provide the buildings and furniture and keep them in repair, while the Government pays the salaries of the teachers and other costs of maintenance.

Warns Chemists To Be On Guard

Position Achieved During War Must Be Made Permanent.

Special warning was given the convention of the Society of Chemical Industry held in Montreal recently, that the industrial chemists of the Anglo-Saxon world, including both the British Empire and United States, must look to it that the position they had achieved during the war was made permanent and not wrested from them in times of peace by the Germans, as it had been during the pre-war period. This argument was especially emphasized by Dr. C. H. Herty, of New York, who dealt with the manner in which the English-speaking nations had regained their chemical prestige during the war and urged the British and American scientists to work together in future to see to it that this prestige was held and added to.

Fighting Grasshoppers

Tremendous Amount of Material Used in Waging War Against Plague.

The fight against the grasshoppers for 1921 has been finished in Saskatchewan, but a still greater battle over a larger area is in sight for next year, according to officials of the department of agriculture. The total amount of materials mixed into poison this summer is staggering and include 3,024 tons of bran; 100 carloads of sawdust; 361,233 pounds of arsenic; 10,100 pounds of paris green; 92,360 gallons of molasses; 895 barrels of salt.

New Gallipoli Incident Told

An Interesting Bit of War History Concerning the Evacuation.

Lord Northcliffe recently revealed an interesting bit of war history concerning the evacuation of Gallipoli. The hero of the story was Keith Murdoch, an Australian journalist, who is returning home 40 become editor of the Melbourne Herald, and the occasion of the telling of it was a luncheon given to Murdoch by the Times.

"It is an open secret," said Lord Northcliffe in proposing Mr. Murdoch's health, "that it was due to his initiative that the Australians and the rest were removed from Gallipoli. Coming to Europe for the first time he went to Gallipoli peninsula and for the first time the truth was revealed.

"He brought a despatch, a very terrible despatch which I believe was intended to be sent to Australia. He showed that despatch to me and I suggested that the time which would be spent in carrying that ghastly record to the Antipodes could be better used for the purpose of immediate action.

"I asked him to take it to Lloyd George and one of the finest pieces of work the Prime Minister did in the war was to circulate the document to the whole cabinet, which then constituted twenty persons. As a result of Keith Murdoch's dispatch immediate action was taken and that terrible story was concluded."

GOOD HEALTH CAN BE YOURS

If Your Blood Supply Is Kept Rich and Red.

It is a waste of time and money to fight merely the signs of disease; in the long run you are probably worse off than when you started. What is far more important is that you should intelligently examine the various symptoms and trace the cause. When you remove the cause, health will be yours. For example, anaemic people often endure months of suffering while treating its symptoms, such as indigestion, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and exhaustion after any small effort.

The apparent stomach and heart troubles are generally nothing more than the result of an insufficient supply of pure blood. This anaemic state may have followed some previous illness, or an attack of influenza or it may have arisen from overwork, worry or too little fresh air. To obtain good health the simple and proper course is to build up the blood, but to do this you must select a reliable remedy with a reputation such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills enrich the blood which carries nourishment to all the organs of the body and enables them to do the work nature expects of them. Thousands of men and women have proved this for themselves. One of these is Mrs. T. Flynn, R.R. No. 1, Erinsville, Ont., who says: "Last spring I got into a badly run down condition. I had no energy; work left me exhausted, and the least exertion would make my heart palpitate violently. I had often read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and decided to give them a trial and got a half dozen boxes. I had not been taking the pills long when I felt a decided improvement in my condition and by the time I had used the six boxes I could do my housework with ease. I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all weak people."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

To Make Cool Drinks

BY LORETTO C. LYNCH

An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

Since prohibition, clever folks are concocting satisfying drinks for summer porch serving. And the writer has endeavored to collect the recipes of the more attractive ones.

Here is one called blackberry fizz. A quart of blackberries is stewed in just a little water until soft and broken. These are strained and sweetened and then bottled or canned for future use, if the juice is not to be used at once. To make the drink, pour one-third of a glass of blackberry syrup into a chilled glass. Add a tablespoon of lemon juice and some crushed ice. Then fill the glass to the top with ginger ale.

Fruit punch is sometimes found flat and lacking in flavor, while it may contain choice ingredients. This may be overcome by the addition of a little orange pekoe tea infusion. A rounding tablespoon of tea steeped in a quart of boiling water for five minutes is a desirable addition to the average gallon of punch.

Here are the proportions for a punch to serve twenty-five with probably two cups of punch each: To the juice of twenty oranges and twelve lemons, add a pound of granulated sugar and boil five minutes. Cool and then add the contents of one No. 10 can of grated pineapple.

Add a quart of cold tea infusion and three quarts of either plain water or Apollinaris. The punch should be thoroughly chilled before serving. It may be necessary to add more sugar. Maraschino cherries may be added without their juice. The latter will change the color.

Of course there are always unexpected guests dropping in during the summer days, and it is well to keep the orange-lemon syrup on hand in a preserving jar in the refrigerator. Use twenty oranges and twelve lemons with a pound of sugar. Half or quarter of this may be boiled into a syrup.

With the syrup on hand, it takes but a moment to add the still or sparkling water once the syrup is in the glass.

Small cans of sliced pineapple and a jar or two of maraschino cherries may be kept on hand for special occasions. A bit of pineapple and a couple of cherries make a real festive drink out of an otherwise commonplace drink.

Iced tea, iced coffee and iced cocoa will ever be summer drink favorites. To be at their best they must be properly made and attractively served.

Tea should be freshly made—steeped in boiling water for four minutes. The best results seem to come from pouring hot tea over ice into the serving glass.

Lemon is usually used with iced tea. The lemon should be thinly sliced. Powdered sugar is added.

Iced coffee likewise is made from fresh hot coffee poured over enough ice to both cool and chill it.

Iced cocoa may be allowed to cool before it is chilled by ice. Whipped cream is served with both iced coffee and iced cocoa.

There are having some beautiful glasses for the serving of these summer drinks. Long glass spoons in color are quite the fad and add to the attractiveness of any porch drink.

Dust Storms At Sea

Vessels Many Miles Out Impeded By Violent Dust Storm.

The Santa Rosalia, a merchant vessel belonging to the United States sent in three successive reports to the weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture on its trip from Karatsu, Japan, to Taku, China, and thence to Shanghai, en route to Port Townsend. Accompanying its May report was a small envelope full of a fine, yellowish gray dust gathered up from the decks where it had fallen.

A note on the subject explained that the air was so full of the dust that sailing was hazardous, owing to impaired visibility. This was April 13, in latitude 37 degrees 25 minutes north, longitude 122 degrees 50 minutes east, a point of the Yellow Sea near Port Arthur on the peninsula now called Chosen, formerly Korea.

Investigation revealed that the same week there had been a violent continental cyclone or dust storm many miles to the north in Mongolia, on the border of Siberia. Corroboration of the fact that quantities of this dust sufficient to impede vessels could be blown as far south as the East China and Yellow Seas was interesting to scientific workers all over the world.

Fish In Abundance.

Abundance of fish is reported from all points on the southern portion of the Labrador coast and numerous schooners are returning to Newfoundland ports with full cargoes. It is also anticipated that the bank fishery on the west coast of Newfoundland will be the best for many years.

A man may be a complete master of himself and yet have nothing to boast of.

Nature's Bounty

Sometimes Has Very Bad Effect On Unhappy Mortals.

Many a mother has overfed her children until they sickened and died; and nature is sometimes guilty of a bounty which has the same effect upon unhappy mortals. "Great Yield of Fish Ruins Brittany Trade," says a headline in the New York Times, which goes on to explain that the fishermen in all the villages along the coast are standing about the wharves, smoking and swearing at the bounteousness of nature, which has supplied so many fish that they are all out of work:

If they go out one day a week they catch as many sardines and mackerel and other fish as they used to catch in seven days, and the price they get for them is comparatively, in the purchasing power of money, less than half the present war prices. . . . Almost every day millions of the little fish (sardines) are thrown out to make fertilizer for the fields. Canners, too, have now exhausted the supply of tin and have begun closing down their factories in the very middle of what used to be the season. But in Paris restaurants the price of sole is five times what it was before the war.

The situation is all too common in America. Except during the war scarcity we often saw vegetables, fish —every sort of food except the expensive types suitable for cold storage—destroyed deliberately to keep the price up. The apple grower sets out his orchards, sprays, prunes and nurses them—but also generous crop will ruin him. If a normal yield is a thousand bushels, he will make more money on five hundred than on fifteen hundred. The much-quoted visitor from Mars would be puzzled by a newspaper headline which says, "Cotton Market Opens Strong and Gets Better On Rumors of Drought and Crop Failure," but every American child understands it, and sees nothing wrong in it. It is just a part of our peculiar way of doing things.

The ancient Romans sowed their crops only after examining the viscera of freshly killed chickens. Will we ever reach a day when it will seem equally absurd to us to destroy good food so that the producers of good food may continue to live?—From the New York Globe.

Will Use Chemicals In Future War

Gas Is More Merciful In Warfare Than Explosives.

Sir William Pope, president of the Society of Chemical Industry, at the convention in Montreal, spoke on "Gas Warfare," and said that at the time of the armistice materials had been found against which respirators were of no avail. Sir William charged, that from a humanitarian viewpoint gas was a more merciful factor of warfare than big explosives, and its results had been shown to be far less destructive. As to mustard gas, a preparation which put a man out of the fighting strength for a period of six weeks, the allies, he said, had enough at the time of the armistice to have caused the Germans to be waiting knee-deep in it. He concluded that chemical agencies would be the sole deciding factor of future wars.

Earth Collided With Comet

Planet Believed to Have Passed Through Comet's Tail on August 8th.

Announcement is made at the Koenigstuhl Observatory in Heidelberg, Germany, that the earth passed through the tail of a comet on the night of August 8.

At sunset on August 7, a bright object was observed near the sun by W. W. Campbell, director of Lick Observatory, which is located near San Jose, California. Five persons saw the celestial object, and reports from the observatory indicated that experts there believed it might be the nucleus of a bright comet. It would appear probable that this identification was correct, in view of the foregoing report from Germany.

Home Bread Making

Suggestions as to Requirements to Secure the Best Results.

Bread-making is an art not nearly so extensively practiced in the household as in bygone days. In urban districts it is so little practiced that home-made bread has come to be regarded as a luxury. The reason is not far to seek. Trouble is avoided, and professional bakers turn out an article of good quality generally, and at a price little in excess of what the cost would be if made by the housewife or the cook. And then the baker has facilities that the housekeeper has not. For instance, one of the main difficulties encountered when bread is being made in the home is the lack of a place where the dough can be kept at suitable and even temperature throughout the whole period of fermentation. Relative to this fact, Dr. C. E. Saunders, the Dominion Cerealist, in a bulletin recently issued at Ottawa on "Wheat, Flour and Bread," says that where bread is made very often it would be advisable to construct a special fermenting box or cupboard, where the temperature can be maintained at between 80 and 90 degrees. Once the process of fermentation has started the dough must not be allowed to become either chilled or overheated. A little butter, lard or other shortening reduces the toughness without detracting from the flavor. Sugar should be used in great moderation. Dr. Saunders goes fully into the subject and quotes methods that he recommends for home bread-making, which he says is undoubtedly cheaper than the product of the bakeries, particularly in the winter, when no special fire has to be made.

Asthma Doesn't Wear Off Alone. Do not make the mistake of waiting for asthma to wear away by itself. While you are waiting the disease is surely gathering a stronger foothold and you live in danger of stronger and yet stronger attacks. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy taken early, will prevent incipient condition from becoming chronic and saves hours of suffering.

Accredited Herds

Sixty Thousand Dollars a Month Has Been Spent in this Work.

Since September, 1919, the "accredited herd" plan has been partly in operation in the Dominion. The system originated among breeders in the United States who had recognized for a long time the serious inroads which tuberculosis had been making in their herds and in 1917 the Federal Government adopted their suggestions. There are in Canada at present about 17 duly accredited herds, that is, herds which have undergone the three semi-annual tuberculin tests and have been proved disease free. Their distribution among the provinces is significant. British Columbia has 7, Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan 2 each, and Quebec has 4. For the last three months an expenditure at the rate of $60,000 a month has been made on this head, but it is understood that owing to the general financial stringency, the work cannot be continued at this rate.

Flies and Colors

The House Fly Seems to Have Color Preference.

If you want to make your room attractive to flies, paper it in bright yellow. They like that color best.

They do not seem to care about blue, green or orange, one way or the other. Red they markedly dislike.

House flies are our most intimate companions and everything that can be learned about them is worth knowing. Their color preferences have been ascertained by recent elaborate experiments.

Boy Scouts In The Antarctic

Two Scotch Lads Are Cabin Boys On the Shackleton Expedition.

Undeterred by his previous rather terrifying experiences in the Antarctic, Sir Ernest Shackleton sailed from England recently on a 30,000-mile voyage of discovery among the little known islands in the South Atlantic and South Pacific and in the uncharted seas that girdle the South Polar continent. As his last act before starting on his eventful expedition, Sir Ernest selected two Boy Scouts to be cabin boys out of ten picked out from the hundreds who applied from all parts of the United Kingdom because of their peculiar qualifications. As it happens, two from Scotland were preferred, one from Shetland and the other from Aberdeen, and naturally they were envied by all boys that have the call of adventure in their blood. Both of the chosen Scouts had gained the highest badges possible, and what, perhaps, was the decisive qualification, they were accustomed to handling boats. Although they occupy the lowest positions, they will undoubtedly have plenty of chances to prove their mettle and be called on also to show their powers of endurance under extremely adverse circumstances. Sir Ernest Shackleton and his companions in their last expedition, that started out in the early days of the war, had more than their fill of the "stark and sullen solitudes that sentinel the Pole."

The Quest, as the explorer's new ship is called, is a little vessel of some 200 tons net and is manned by men of science and the sea and equipped for every brach of scientific research. The most modern instruments are provided, the whole expedition having been made possible by the generosity of Mr. John Quiller Rowett, of Eby Place, Frant, Sussex. During the exploration, soundings will be made and many oceanic islands will be examined, some but little known and others not know at all. Animal, bird and marine life in these islands and adjacent waters will be studied, as well as their geology. Magneticians will take the necessary observations, and the kinema and still camera will record every phase of the work. Perhaps the stormiest and most dangerous portion of the expedition will be the exploration of the Antarctic south of the Cape of Good Hope. It is close on ninety years ago since any keel has found its way into the ice-laden waters south of South Africa. All that is known of these unvisited tracts is one small landmass, Enderby Land, which may be part of the great Antarctic continent or may be an island. The lands of the continent here are unknown for a distance of over three thousand miles, and here lies, in great part, the mystery of the cruise of the Quest. Search will also be made for the lost island of Tsunaki, mentioned in missionary records and in native legends of New Zealand. Other missing islands will be sought, and we may be sure that the two Scotch cabin boys will have endless tales to tell when they get back to civilization.

Rye In Drought Areas

Expected There Will Be One Million Acres Sown in Rye this Year.

M. A. Brown, of the Western Canada Colonization Association, who has returned from a tour of Southern Saskatchewan and Alberta, where he took part in the campaign for increased fall rye acreage in the drought areas, stated that it is expected there will be one million acres sown in rye this year. Fully 50 per cent. of the farmers in these districts will seed a portion of their land to this crop. Results of farmers who have tried rye are all in favor of the crop for the drought areas, he said.

To Mr. Smith it was a matter of small moment whether Mr. Duff welcomed him cordially or not. He even indulged now and then in a bout of his own with the gentleman, chuckling inordinately when results showed that he had pitched his remark at just the right note of contrariety to get what he wanted.

For the most part, however, Mr. Smith, at least nominally, spent his time at his legitimate task of studying and copying the Blaisdell family records, of which he was finding a great number. Rufus Blaisdell apparently had done no little "digging" himself in his own day, and Mr. Smith told Miss Maggie that it was all a great "find" for him.

Miss Maggie seemed pleased. She said that she was glad if she could be of any help to him, and she told him to come whenever he liked. She arranged the Bible and the big box of papers on a little table in the corner and told him to make himself quite at home, and she showed plainly that she regarded him as quite one of the family that Mr. Smith might be pardoned for soon considering himself so.

It was while at work in this corner that he came to learn so much of Miss Maggie's daily life, and of her visitors.

Although many of these visitors were strangers to him, some of them he knew.

One day it was Mrs. Hattie Blaisdell, with a countenance even more florid than usual. She was breathless and excited, and her eyes were worried. She was going to give a luncheon, she said. She wanted Miss Maggie's silver spoons, and her forks, and her hand-painted sugar-and-creamer, and Mother Blaisdell's cut-glass dish.

Mr. Smith, supposing that Miss Maggie herself was to be at the luncheon, was just rejoicing within him that she was to have this pleasant little outing, when he heard Mrs. Blaisdell telling her to be sure to come at eleven to be in the kitchen, and asking where could she get a maid to serve in the dining-room, and what should she do with Benny. He'd have to be put somewhere, or else he'd be sure to upset everything.

Mr. Smith did not hear Miss Maggie's answer to all this, for she hurried her visitor to the kitchen at once —to look up the spoons, she said. But indirectly he obtained a very conclusive reply; for he found Miss Maggie gone one day when he came, and Benny, who was in her place, told him all about it, even to the dandy frosted cake Aunt Maggie had made for the company to eat.

Another day it was Mrs. Jane Blaisdell who came. Mrs. Jane had a tired frown between her brows and a despairing droop to her lips. She carried a large bundle which she dropped unceremoniously into Miss Maggie's lap.

"There, I'm dead beat out, and I've brought it to you. You've just got to help me," she finished, sinking into a chair.

"Why of course, if I can. But what is it?" Miss Maggie's deft fingers were already untying the knot.

"It's my old black silk. I'm making it over."

"Again? But I thought the last time it couldn't ever be done again."

"Yes, I know; but there's lots of good in it yet," interposed Mrs. Jane decidedly; "and I've bought new velvet and new lace, and some buttons, and a new lining. I thought I could do it alone, but I've reached a point where I just have to have help. So I came right over."

"Yes, of course, but"—Miss Maggie was lifting a half-finished sleeve doubtfully—"why didn't you go to Flora? She'd love it exactly—"

Mrs. Jane stiffened.

"Because I can't afford to go to Flora," she interrupted coldly. "I have to pay Flora, and you know it. If I had the money I should be glad to do it, of course. But I haven't, and charity begins at home, I think. Besides, I do go to her for new dresses. But this old thing—! Of course, if you don't want to help me—"

"Oh, but I do," plunged in Miss Maggie hurriedly. "Come out into the kitchen where we'll have more room," she exclaimed, gathering the bundle into her arms and springing to her feet.

"I've got some other lace at home—yards and yards. I got a lot, it was so cheap," recounted Mrs. Jane, rising with alacrity. "But I'm afraid it won't do for this, and I don't know as it will do for anything, it's so—"

The kitchen door slammed sharply, and Mr. Smith heard no more. Half an hour later, however, he saw Mrs. Jane go down the walk. The frown was gone from her face and the droop from the corners of her mouth. Her step was alert and confident. She carried no bundle.

The next day it was Miss Flora. Miss Flora's thin little face looked more pinched than ever, and her eyes more anxious. Mr. Smith thought. Even her smile, as she acknowledged Mr. Smith greeting, was so wan he wished she had not tried to give it.

She sat down then, by the window, and began to chat with Miss Maggie; and very soon Mr. Smith heard her say this—

"No, Maggie, I don't know, really, what I am going to do—truly I don't. Business is so turrible dull! Why, I don't earn enough to pay my rent, really, now, tee' say nothin' of my feed."

Miss Maggie frowned.

"But I thought that Hattie—isn't Hattie having some new dresses—and Bessie, too?"

A sigh passed Miss Flora's lips.

"Yes, oh, yes; they are having three or four. But they don't come to me any more. They've gone to that French woman that makes the Peacocks' things, you know, with the silver name. And of course it's all right, and you can't blame 'em, livin' on the West Side, as they do now. And, of course, I ain't so ng ter dat as she is. And just her name counts."

"Nonsense! Up to date, indeed!" (Miss Maggie laughed merrily, but Mr. Smith, copying dates at the table, detected a note in the laugh that was not merriment.) "You're up to date enough for me. I've got just the job for you, too. Come out into the kitchen." She was already almost at the door.

"Why, Maggie, you haven't either!" (In spite of the incredulity of voice and manner, Miss Flora sprang joyfully to her feet.) "You never had me make you a—" Again the kitchen door slammed shut, and Mr. Smith was left to finish the sentence for himself.

But Mr. Smith was not finishing sentences. Neither was his face expressing just then the sympathy which it might be supposed to be showing, after so sorry a tale as Miss Flora had been telling. On the contrary, Mr. Smith, with an actual elation of countenance, was scribbling on the edge of his notebook words that certainly he had never found in the Blaisdell records before: "Two months more, then—a hundred thousand dollars. And may I be there to see it!"

Half an hour later, as on the previous day, Mr. Smith saw a metamorphosed woman hurrying down the little path to the street. But the woman to-day was carrying a bundle —and it was the same bundle that the woman the day before had brought. But not always, as Mr. Smith soon learned, were Miss Maggie's visitors women. Besides Benny, with his grievances, young Fred Blaisdell came sometimes, and poured into Miss Maggie's sympathetic ears the story of Gussie Pennock's really remarkable personality, or of what he was going to do when he went to college —and afterwards.

Mr. Jim Blaisdell drifted in quite frequently Sunday afternoons, though apparently all he came for was to smoke and read in one of the big comfortable chairs. Mr. Smith himself had fallen into the way of strolling down to Miss Maggie's almost every Sunday after dinner.

One Saturday afternoon Mr. Frank Blaisdell rattled up to the door in his grocery wagon. His face was very red, and his mutton-chop whiskers were standing straight out at each side.

Jane had collapsed, he said, utterly collapsed. All the week she had been house-cleaning and doing up curtains; and now this morning, expressly against his wishes, to save hiring a man, she had put down the parlor carpet herself. Now she was flat on her back, and supper to be got for the boarder, and the Saturday baking yet to be done. And could Maggie come and help out?

Before Miss Maggie could answer, Mr. Smith hurried out from his corner and insisted that "the boarder" did not want any supper anyway—and could they not live on crackers and milk for the coming few days?

But Miss Maggie laughed and said, "Nonsense!" And in an incredibly short time she was ready to drive back in the grocery wagon. Later, when he went home, Mr. Smith found her there, presiding over one of the best suppers he had eaten since his arrival in Hillerton. She came every day after that, for a week, for Mrs. Jane remained "flat on her back" seven days, with a doctor in daily attendance, supplemented by a trained nurse peremptorily ordered by that same doctor from the nearest city.

Miss Maggie, with the assistance of Mellicent, attended to the housework. But in spite of the excellence of the cuisine, meal time was a most unhappy period to everybody concerned owing to the sarcastic comments of Mr. Frank Blaisdell as to how much his wife had "saved" by not having a man to put down that carpet.

Mellicent had little time now to go walking or auto-riding with Carl Pennock. Her daily life was, indeed, more pleasure-starved than ever—all of which was not lost on Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith and Mellicent were fast friends now. Given a man with a sympathetic understanding on one side, and a girl hungry for that same sympathy and understanding, and it could hardly be otherwise. From Mellicent's own lips Mr. Smith knew now just how hungry a young girl can be for fun and furbelows.

"Of course I've got my board and clothes, and I ought to be thankful for them," she stormed hotly to him one day. "And I am thankful for them. But sometimes it seems as of I would be willing to go hungry for meat and potato, if for once—just once—I could buy a fivepound box of candy and eat it up all at once, if I wanted to! But now, why now I can't even treat a friend to an ice-cream soda without seeing mother's shocked, reproachful eyes over the rim of the glass!"

It was not easy then (for many times subsequently) for Mr. Smith to keep from asking Mellicent the utterly absurd question of how many five-pound boxes of candy she supposed one hundred thousand dollars would buy. But he did keep from it—by heroic self-sacrifice and the comforting recollection that she would know some day, if she cared to take the trouble to reckon it up.

In Mellicent's love affair with young Pennock, Mr. Smith was enormously interested. Not that he regarded it as really serious, but because it appeared to bring into Mellicent's life something of the youth and gayety to which he thought she was entitled. He was almost as concerned as was Miss Maggie, therefore, when one afternoon, soon after Mrs. Jane Blaisdell's complete recovery from her "carpet tax" (as Frank Blaisdell termed his wife's recent illness), Mellicent rushed into the Duff living-room with rose-red cheeks and blazing eyes, and an explosive—

"Aunt Maggie, Aunt Maggie, can't you get mother to let me go away somewhere—anywhere, right off?"

"Why, Mellicent! Away? And just to-morrow the Pennocks' dance?"

"But that's it—that's why I want to go," flashed Mellicent. "I don't want to be at the dance—and I don't want to be in town, and not at the dance."

Horses Prefer To Obtained From Complete Relaxation.

Sufficient Rest Is Obtained From Complete Relaxation.

It is sometimes argued that horses because of an instinctive fear of mice, and insects, rest and sleep largely while standing. Among domestic animals probably no habit is otherwise so inexplicable. When turned out to pasture, horses are apt to spend more time lying down, but even at that, they are said seldom to spend more than one hour a night recumbent. That hour is generally taken at midnight. It is not unconmon for people to express wonder at the quiet way many horses will stand, practically motionless for hours in one position. Few persons realize how complete is the relaxation obtained and to what an extent a horse is able to rest in a few hours of such repose. Stable men not infrequently tell of horses which they confidently declare, never have slept, except on their feet, in their lives. The trait is more marked in some horses than in others, but concerning the very short period a day many horses sleep off their feet there can be no question, as in almost every stables there has been ample opportunity for continuous observation.

To Create Employment

G.W.V.A. Suggest Utilizing Waste Land of Cities.

The Dominion Command Great War Veterans has received the outline of a plan whereby waste lands in the vicinity of every large city could be utilized and at the same time create employment.

The scheme as outlined provides for the formation of a corporation to be known as the corporation for unemployment, with shares at $1 each to be contributed by any person interested. This money, the plan sets forth, would purchase the land while the produce sold at regular market prices would pay wages and other charges.

If this scheme were in operation it is believed every unemployed man could be given work while waiting for an opening in his proper trade.

Japan Protected Forts of India

Kept German Fleet Out of Asian Waters During War.

What would have happened to India in the last war if the Japanese had been pro-German, or even neutral? There would have been German bases in the Pacific. Emden alone was able to do enormous damage and to make people in this country very nervous. But what might have happened had the German Pacific fleet been always able to remain in Asian waters, with the power to return to Tsingtao to refit? Under those conditions, there would have been no fight on con Spee across the Pacific. It was because Tsingtao was denied to the Germans by the Japanese that Indian commerce was able to carry on, that Indian ports were saved from feeling some of the worst effects of the war.—The Englishman, Calcutta.

World Agriculture

Important Matters Dealt With at the Last Meeting of the International Institute in Rome.

At the last general meeting of the International Institute of Agriculture held in Rome and attended by Mr. T. K. Doherty, Chief of the Institute for Canada, many important matters were dealt with. Proposals for greater speed in the collection and circulation of crop reports introduced by the Canadian delegate at a previous meeting were adopted. These reports are to be cabled before the 10th of each month, a summary made and cabled to the governments represented two days later. The establishment of a special bureau in each country to carry on correspondence, the same as exists in Canada, was represented. Some changes were made in the classification of livestock for annual report and census purposes. A table of the classification adopted by the Institute is given in The Agricultural Gazette. The permanent committee was asked to report on expenditures incurred by the different governments in the interests of agriculture. The Institute was requested to publish the result of inquiries into the methods adopted during and immediately following the war for the increase of agricultural production. It was decided to recommend to affiliated governments the appointment of agricultural attaches to their embassies. On the suggestion of the French delegate a permanent committee on agricultural meteorology is to be appointed. A proposal for the creation of International Research Institute of Plant Pathology was adopted. A proposal was made that the governments should establish scholarships enabling students to visit the Institute at Rome for purpose of study. It was decided that a consultative committee of specialists from each country should be established for the better co-operation of the bureaus and to meet in annual conference. When adequate funds are available a Year Book of Economic and Social Institutions and a dictionary of technical words are to be published. There was a consensus of opinion strongly opposed to the fixing of an eight-hour day for agricultural labor and the matter was referred to the consideration of delegates who represented town labor. A desire was generally expressed that most cordial relations should be maintained between the Institute and the League of Nations.

For the Next War

Grim Horrors Are Seen By Hudson Maxim, the Inventor.

Encouraged, apparently, by his success as a war prophet over a long period of years, the veteran inventor, Hudson Maxim, has contributed "A Forecast of the Next War" to the New York Tribune. As Maxim predicted the Russo-Japanese war and its outcome, the possibilities of aviation in warfare, the use of poisonous gas and smoke bombs, his latest prophecies command respect, notwithstanding the shuddering nightmare presented by his picture of the next world war.

"In the next great war not only will the most deadly poisonous gases be spread broadcast over actual contending forces, both on land and sea, but also over inland cities," says Mr. Maxim. "Not only will the actual fighters be attacked, but non-combatants also will be attacked. In the next great war we may look for the most disastrous and far-reaching results from the use of the airplane as a sower of death and destruction.

"Twenty years ago I predicted that the airplane, which is able to overgo all barriers, would place inland positions on the firing line. This was done to a large extent in the world war. Paris and London were bombarded and, had the war continued a little longer, Berlin would have been wiped off the map and its inhabitants destroyed. Vickers Sons and Maxim had built enormous airplanes, capable of carrying tons of poisonous gases, and they were almost ready to begin the flight to Berlin for the destruction of that city when the armistice was signed.

"In the next great war we are going to see germs of the most deadly diseases sown broadcast by airplan s. We are going to see inland cities smothered in poisonous gases and tens of thousands of inhabitants, men, women and children, killed in a few minutes.

"Fleas and cooties or body lice will be infected with bubonic plague and typhus fever and other deadly ailments and sowed by billions over the inhabitants of enemy countries. Rats and mice will be infected with bubonic plague and let down from airplanes to spread contagion. There will be no place that one may hide himself and be safe from attack. All non-combatants will be exposed to destruction, as the sinful, according to Revelation, are to be exposed on the Day of Judgment."

The Vital Question.

Edison predicts that motor cars will in a few years be distilling their own fuel. Interested ones ask if there will be any surplus of distilled product available or will the car require it all.

A Northern Pioneer

Man From Arctic Feels Cold When On Southern Trip.

Eighty years of age and yet more active than many men thirty years younger, Mr. Francois Xavier Laderoute brings with him to Vancouver from the Northland an interesting tale of hardship and success. Looking at the straight active figure of the octogenarian, it would seem almost a libel to place him in the "old" category, while his experiences of the north, as retailed by him, show that the pioneer has had by no means an "easy chair" life. For twenty-three years Mr. Laderoute has fought the Arctic severity of the land which can only be conquered by virile manhood, and has proven that "whatever man dares he can do."

Starting life in Eastern Canada, and, in his youth a lumberack on the Ottawa and other rivers, Mr. Laderoute, twenty-three years ago, came west, in response to an advertisement from a Vancouver mill for experienced lumbermen. Vancouver, in those days, was somewhat different from the Vancouver of today, and soon the easterner grew weary. The north called to him, he declared, and would not be denied, and so, he sought, and found, what lie craved for, and secured 480 acres of virgin land at Kirkman Creek, one hundred miles north of Dawson city.

"At present I live on the entire work of my farm. I have twenty-five acres under cultivation for the growing of the grain required for my cattle, sheep and poultry, and I work it without any help whatever. I live alone in my little cabin, but never feel lonely or discouraged. I never seek company which, especially in the midst of my farming work, holds me up. Four years ago I lost my wife by death. It was indeed lonely then, but I stuck to my work."

In addition to his farming duties, Mr. Laderoute is also mail carrier, trekking forty-five miles each day.

"In winter I have to make a new trail each trip, as no one uses the route. Cold Yes, at times, I have seen the thermometer at 82 degrees below zero, but the average winter cold ranges from 50 to 75 below. How do I stand it, let me tell you I feb more cold in Ontario and chillier in Vancouver today, than I feel at my own homestead," declared Mr. Laderoute with a smile.

Why Panama Hats Are Expensive

Requires Month and a Half to Make Fine One.

Most of the so-called Panama hats are made in Ecuador. The material is called paja toquilla and comes from a palm two or three meters high. The leaves are cut just as they are about to unfold, the veins taken out and the fibre remaining is dipped for a few minutes in boiling water to which a little lemon juice is added for bleaching purposes. Each leaf has approximately thirty strands about fifty-five centimeters in length although the best grade reaches eighty centimeters. The hats can be woven only during the part of the day when the humidity is greatest, since the straw of the best quality is not dampened. A man working six hours a day completes an ordinary hat in six or seven days, but on a very fine one he spends a month and a half; it is the labor, therefore, which makes the hats expensive. The most famous are those of Monte Cristi; they surpass all others in fineness, lightness and perfection.—Bulletin of the Pan-American Union.

Styles In China

Shanghai Guides Fashions Which Change Eight Times Yearly.

Notwithstanding the popular Western fancy that fashions never change in China the Chinese women is painstakingly particular as to the exact length and fulness—or scantiness—of her coats, skirts and trousers. She is carefully precise about the width of bias bands or braid or lace that she uses for trimming, the number and arrangement of fastenings, the shape and height of her collar. All of these details vary tyrannically from season to season—under Shanghai guidance—as certain style fetiches do with us under the leadership of New York or Paris. Moreover, as against our four seasons, the fashion devoted of China takes account of eight, each with its appropriate style and weight of clothing.—M. T. F. in Asia Magazine.

London Bridge

Thousands of Motors Cross the Bridge Every Hour.

A thousand motor cars cross London Bridge every hour of the day; and along Oxford Street where two centuries ago positions were held up by highwaymen, six thousand motor busies pass every day—and would not stop if the curb were lined with Dick Turpins, as one writer has observed. Over 5,000 cabs are available in the city; and 2,500 tramcars on 68 services, thread their way through the maze of London's streets for 150 miles; while another 250 miles of streets are covered by 150 motor buses operating on 138 services. All of this traffic is within the county.

In London today there are less than one-third as many evening newspapers published as there were 125 years ago.

Eskimo Trapper Sells Four Wives

Fellow Tribesmen Give Tea and Tobacco in Trade.

A report from the north states that an Eskimo trapper, en route to a trading post to sell his furs, disposed of four of his wives, each for a pound of tea and some tobacco. The purchasers are fellow tribesmen returning from the Brochette post of the Hudson's Bay Company and heavily laden with supplies. Two of the wives have been involved in similar transactions, the report goes on to say, and one of them traded six times, twice for a pound of tea, once for a can of condensed milk, once for a plug of tobacco and once for a slab of bacon. As it is the custom of the Eskimo, the original owner may redeem his wives upon payment of double the purchase price.

Spills Silver and Ties Up Traffic

Atlantic City Messenger Was Taking Deposit to Bank.

Street car traffic on Atlantic Avenue was tied up half an hour when Andrew Higbee, employed as a messenger by the Atlantic City Street Railway Company, alighted from a trolley to deposit the day's receipts in a bank.

Higbee carried $6,000 worth of coin in a bag and the bottom fell out of the bag, paving the streets with silver. A corps of detectives was summoned to protect him during salvaging operations.

Fails in Attempt to Swim Channel.

Harry Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass., who started to swim across the English Channel from Cape Gris Nez, near Calais, to Dover, failed to accomplish the feat. He was obliged to abandon the attempt after swimming for ten hours and ten minutes, by which time he had but reached the middle of the channel.

Our slogan for the coming year should be, "Brew at Home." Add to your own and your neighbor's prosperity by keeping the money circulating in our own district.

You Can Prevent 40 % Annual Depreciation in Your Car, Truck or Tractor

By using a lubricant that will stop friction which is the great foe to gear life. Go into any repair shop and see the number of cars being overhauled because some owners think that all lubricants are equally good. Repair men will tell you that half of their business results from imperfect lubrication.

Whitmore's Gear Compositions

are not affected by changes of temperature. They are actively fluid in the colder weather, and in extreme heat and at high speeds they constantly preserve an indestructible film on the bearings, preventing contact of metal to metal.

WHITMORE'S do not evaporate under extreme heat, the level is not reduced. Run it through a strainer and put it back in your car, truck or tractor. You can use it over and over again. One installation will last eighteen to twenty-four months where there is no leakage. Considered on a mileage basis no lubricant is so economical as Whitmore's.

OTHER LUBRICANTS MAY COST LESS PER POUND—THEY COST MORE PER MILE.

Don't ask for a grease—ask for Whitmore's Auto Gear Protective Composition, manufactured by The Whitmore Manufacturing Co., Cleveland, Ohio.
